Erlangen, March, 28, 2017 – The Method Park group sets up a new location in Hannover on April 1. The metropolitan area of Hannover with the catchment areas Wolfsburg, Braunschweig, Gifhorn, Salzgitter and Hildesheim, belongs to the largest automotive cluster in Northern Germany. Method Park wants to support car manufacturers and component suppliers in the automotive branch there quicker and more targeted. This will be by locally offering know-how, competent support and software and systems development processes, including branch-specific regulatory standards such as ISO 26262 for Functional Safety, Automotive SPICE®, CMMI™ and AUTOSAR, and provide support on the challenges of development processes or handling of variant-rich systems.

“Companies in Northern Germany have benefited from Method Park’s support on software development projects for several years. It is important to us, to significantly shorten the regional distance to our customers. With our location in Hannover, we significantly increase our availability for customers in this region“, says Michael Landwehr, Sales Manager at Method Park. Method Park offers not only consulting and engineering services in Hannover, but also training and courses.

This new Method Park location is an important contact point for customers in Northern Germany.
